Re: Business Opportunity Rule, R511993

Dear Sir or Madam:

The purpose of this letter is to express my concern over the proposed Business Opportunity Rule (R511993). While I understand and appreciate the role of the FTC to protect the public from unfair business practices, some of the sections will make it very difficult or prevent me from marketing products.

One of the sections of the proposed rule is suggesting there be a seven day waiting period before enrolling new members. This waiting period gives the impression that something is wrong with the process. This rule would prevent people from receiving products in a timely fashion. It would also create extra paperwork. Mannatech has already made concessions for anyone who is not pleased with a purchase. They have a 90% buyback policy for all products.

Under the proposed rule, I believe it would be unfair to require the release of information regarding lawsuits unless a company is found guilty.

The proposed rule would require disclosing a minimum of ten previous purchasers to the prospective purchaser. This is out of line in respect to the HIPPA laws that are already in place.

I appreciate the work of the FTC. I do not believe this proposed new rule will be in our best interest and would result in many unintended consequences. I believe there are other alternatives that could be put in place that would accomplish the same goals.

Thank you for your time for re-considering these matters.

Sincerely,
