

To Whom It May Concern: Federal Trade Commission

I am writing to ask that you reconsider making some of the proposed changes that would affect my business as an Independent PartyLite consultant, in the direct sales industry line. I have been in business for 4 strong years so I have ample experience in making the statements given. I am a Unit Leader with PartyLite and am proud of the company that I represent. PartyLite does not condone bad business practices and makes it so obtainable for some many people to change their lives for the better for whatever circumstance they might have.

The proposals you are suggesting, in providing 10 references, would make my business much more difficult and could possibly impact it greatly with a loss in income and/or a loss in business relationships with potential consultants and/or hostesses. I do not feel comfortable giving out personal contact information of other people in PartyLite, nor would I want my own personal information given out.

I truly believe in PartyLite's business opportunity and want to continue to be able to offer this to others. I also believe that anyone can do it! The regulations that you are proposing would hinder me from offering such a wonderful opportunity to others so freely in hopes that they could benefit as I have. I want to continue to give people the opportunity to start their business when they want and how it would fit for their lives.

I do appreciate all that the FTC does to help protect independent consultants like myself and for consumers, but I do feel that this would not work in our favor. Please do reconsider the changes that you are proposing and not enforce them.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Lynch
