

To Whom It May Concern:

Personal Experience

We have been Independent Business Owners (IBO) for over two years. We have been able to reach the Platinum level, which has allowed us to generate an income in order to pay off debts and increase our way of life. Our next goal as we continue to develop a network of IBO's is to replace my wife's income so that she can stay home with our family. We also would like to give the opportunity for my mother to retire from her over 30 years with the U.S. Postal Service. The Quixtar business not only has provided us income but the ability to have a better lifestyle and accomplish a lot of personal goals and dreams that we have.

When we were registered in the business, we were provided enough information to make an informed decision as to whether or not we wanted to pursue building the Quixtar business. When we sponsor others in the business we provide as much and at times more information. Quixtar and the Britt Worldwide (BWW) is excellent at providing IBO's with the newest and most information material in order for all prospects to make an informed decision. While explaining the business plan and in the follow up process, each prospect is informed that the business is not a "get rich quick" plan and that will require work, in addition to the fact success is not guaranteed, as in any endeavor that is worth pursuing. Prospects typically spend approximately $325 to register with Quixtar and BWW, all of which is 100% money back guarantee.

Specific Issues

Requiring a seven-day waiting period for prospects to register to the business would greatly affect the IBO's ability to generate income. Prospects have the ability to make an educated decision as to whether they want to start their own business and making a mandatory seven-day waiting period would be unreasonable. Also, when the prospect gets started as an IBO, they won't feel as though they can become profitable quickly if everyone they expose to the business plan would have to wait seven days before registering.

As for the requiring of providing a list of references to the prospect is again unreasonable, because this business opportunity is not a job. One should not have to provide a list of references to be an entrepreneur. Prospects typically meet other business owners before making a decision, which is sufficient form of reference for the prospect to make a decision.

A prospect can do their own research on litigation involving the seller and therefore a requirement of providing a litigation list to each prospect, would not be necessary. Providing information to prospects about an IBO's personal income from the Quixtar business such as an individual's tax return or Form 1099-MISC is personal information and should not be required to be shared with individuals. Lastly, disclosure of the average earning of an IBO is documented in the BWW literature pack, which is provided to each prospect that has seen the business plan. That information is sufficient because it shows a prospect that not everyone builds the business, but also shows that if you do the work you can make money.
