RE: Business Opportunity Rule, R511993

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing this letter because I am concerned about the proposed Business Opportunity Rule R511993. Why does the Federal Trade Commission want to make it so very difficult for the small business person such as my wife and I and others. I understand that part of the FTC's responsibilities is to protect the public from "unfair and deceptive acts or practices," but the Sunrider Distributor business is not unfair or deceptive in fact it is just the opposite. Sunrider is a food product that has made an enormous change in my wife's health and mine. Sunrider's business practice is set up in the fairest lest deceptive way possible, in fact several government agency would be well off emulating this business.

I know that you are receiving many letters on this subject and I won't go into all the details that you are reading in most of these letters. I just want you to know that by doing what is being proposed is very unfair. It makes it almost impossible for my family to make the small income that we get from Sunrider. I think the FTC's would make better use of it's time if it looked into the business practices of Wal Mart and the big oil companies than to go after my wife and I and others that depend on a decent respectable business like Sunrider.

I appreciate the work of the FTC to protect consumers, but I believe this proposed new rule has many unintended consequences and that there are less burdensome alternatives available in achieving its goals.

Thank you for your time in considering my comments.

Sincerely,
