

To whom it may Concern, Spam is a serious problem as we all know, but by implementing suppression lists, it will take many legitimate persons livelihood and cause more damage than good. We have all dealt with spammers and I do agree that it is a problem, however I was thinking that opt-in, ip address and mandatory unsubscribe links added to every email is sufficient course of action. I trust that whatever action the FTC makes will be for the benefit of all. Email is the best cost effective communication medium ever invented, and is probably the biggest money maker ever created.
