To Whom it May Concern,

I was a victim of the virus otherwise know as Spyware.
I don't know any other term that more aptly describes this invasion of my personal computer. This software caused major disruption and loss of money due the the creators insistance of spreading this virus through uninvited and unwanted means and causing me to lose the use of my computer for three days.
I can only imagine how many people were unable to rid themselves of Spyware and have therefore found their computers rendered useless. The people responsible for the spread of this program are nothing short of terrorist seeking to extort money from the consumer. These people basically infect your computer and then try to force you to pay them to remove the virus which they caused.

I hope someone delivers justice.
