Subject: Spyware Workshop - Comment, P044509

Anyone who puts adware/spyware on computers should be required to give PC users the option of accepting or rejecting the adware/spyware---you should be able to opt in or opt out. There should be a data base of users who do not want adware/spyware to be able to opt out and the senders should be required to adhere to the wishes of the user as listed in this data base. Senders or sponsors of adware/spyware should be required to pay for all of the costs and time users spend in ridding their computers of unwanted adware/spyware. They have done damage to your computer and they should pay the cost of repairing the damage.

Sincerely,
Jim Harvey
